

Radiation Therapy

Gwynedd Mercy University's Radiation Therapy programs are accredited by the Joint Review Committee on Education in Radiologic Technology (JRCERT). The Radiation Therapy Program follows the most recent radiationtherapy curriculum published by the American Society of Radiologic Technologists (ASRT). Additionally, the most recent American Registry of Registered Radiographers (ARRT) guidelines are integrated into the curriculum.

GMercyU's Bachelor of Health Science in Radiation Therapy degree is for radiographers who have graduated from a Joint Review Committee on Education in Radiologic Technology (JRCERT) program and are registered radiographers or registry eligible.

Upon successful completion, graduates are eligible to apply to take the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists (ARRT) examination in radiation therapy. Applicants must be in good standing and in compliance with the ARRT Standard of Ethics and Rules and Regulations. Any applicant, who has been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor, should contact the ARRT prior to application and have their case review. Each state is responsible for granting the authority to perform medical imaging, interventional procedures, and radiation therapy. It's generally called licensing although some states use other terminology. Many states use ARRT exam scores and/or credentials when making licensing decisions. In other words, some—but not all—states require you to be certified and registered through ARRT before you can obtain a state license. Earning an ARRT credential doesn't automatically mean you're eligible to work in a particular state. All students are encouraged to investigate their state's requirements.
